Kah-Choo Means April Showers

One hallowed institution the debunkers have never cared to fool around with is the April Shower.

They've snarled at Motherhood they've even heckled Love. But the April downspLash is still as widely respected an institution as Baby's First TOOTH.

Just the same, there are some April showers that deserve a jaundiced look. The kind that come down vertically from on high are just fine. But there's the horizontal type, too — the April shower that goes with somebody's springtime cough or sneeze — and that's the one that can bug you.

/ "Bug you" happens to be no metaphor in this case. Because these spring showers may be loaded with disease organisms that shouldn't happen to an innocent bystander. It isn't really raining rain, it's raining viruses — plus a variety of bacteria in many shapes and sizes.

Spring sneezes and Bronchial barks, in short, can be primary factors of Respiratory Disease — a group of ailments that range from the common cold all the way to tuberculosis. Two simple rules apply to the horizontal April shower. If it's yours, cover it up; if it's the other fellow's, duck!

There's a third rule, too. If a spring cold develops into a stubborn cough that just won't get lost better see your doctor. A chronic cough can be a symptom of something pretty serious.

April showers? They're fun to sing about — especially if your lungs are in good shape.

Ancient Egyptian

From just the head of what was, 3,500 years ago, a complete Egyptian statue, experts can judge with some accuracy the rest of the figure. This was probably part of a "block statue," one of a group of sculptures showing a man seated on the ground with his knees drawn up and the arms crossed above them. The body, save for head and hands, would have been covered by a tight garment to give the torso a block-like appearance. A Williams Fund Purchase, the head is now displayed on the ramp of the dramatic Egyptian Gallery of the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts in Richmond.

TIMES FARM NEWS

FARM ACCIDENTS — Eighty percent of all farm accidents are due to carelessness. In the course of a year, nearly one - third of the farm population is involved in accidents, about 28 per cent which mean time lost from work, nearly 1 per cent resulting in permanent disabilities. Most of the accidents on the farm involve machinery. Off the farm, cars or trucks are the agents. Falls lead the dishonor roll of accidents in the rural home, as they do in the city.

SURPLUSES — This country is not the only one faced with the problem of surplus feed grains. South Africa has tripled its corn yield over the last decade. Production has risen to 6.1 million short tons enabling that country to be the world's second largest corn exporter.

FERTILIZER — Kentucky tests reveal that for every $1.00 invested in fertilizer, there is a return of $4.00. There is a point of diminishing returns however. Also, profits are reflected in soil type — crop — and wise purchase of plant food.

PESTICIDES — Do we really need pesticides' The answer is a resounding "Yes", from recognized scientists, those who, by virtue of years of training and experience, are in a position to know. This is particularly true if we expect to continue enjoying improved human, health and bountiful supply of safe, wholesome food. Cornell University answers the question by saying that 'not only do we need them, we are highly dependent on them, especially in the production of food and fiber crops."

SWINE — The University of Minnesota reports records from 2,693 pigs reveal that selecting replacement gilts and boars based on high daily gains will result in higher weaning weights for their offspring. A breeder can expect 90 per cent as much improvement in the next generation by selecting according to daily gain as he can by selecting according to weaning weight. For example — suppose a hog breeder can improve weaning weight of the next generation of pigs by 1.37 pounds per pig by choosing parent stock according to their weight at weaning time. If the breeder selected according to rate of gain after weaning, he could expect 90 per cent as much improvement or about 1.22 pounds per animal in the next generation.

LAMB PRICES — Prices should be higher this spring. There are 11 per cent fewer ewes on hand

Alcoholism Is Expensive Expert Say

Washington D. C. —"Alcoholism costs the nation more than the entire budget for the Defense Department," an expert in the field stated.

Dr. Winton H. Beavon associate director of the National Committee for Prevention of Alcoholism, said the nation's alcoholism bill probably runs a good $50 billion a year. Currently we are spending about $49 billion on defense, he said.

In announcing the committee's two summer institutes on alcoholism, Dr. Beavon supported his statement by noting that some of the primary costs include absenteeism, accidents in industry, traffic accidents, the jailing of alcoholics, and the support of their families. "I admit my statements is a guesstimate," he said "but I'll be happy to back it up."

Dr. Beavon announced that the West Coast Institute will be held at Loma Linda University near Los Angeles, Calif., from July 8-19. The East Coast Institute will be conducted at American University Washington, D. C., from July 29 to August 9." There are at least eight million alcoholics and pre - alcoholics in the nation and it is to combat this national affliction that we hold these institutes", he said.

"If we do not do something to halt the alcoholism epidemic of which affects almost half the U. S. population, we soon will be overwhelmed by these problems in our society", he stated." We claim to be living in the space age, actually we are still in the Dark Ages as for as alcohol problems are concerned,". He said if the purpose of the institutes is to provide educational measures that can check the rising tide of alcoholism, "only about one per cent of all alcoholics are being helped at this time," he stated.

TV Performers And Trophy Winners

1964 Offers Farmers Two Wheat Programs

Wheat growers will have a choice of two programs for 1964, according to J. A. Martin, chairman of the Appomattox Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee. The choice will be presented to farmers in a referendum, to be held in late spring, as directed by law.

In general, Mr. Martin, explained, the first program would limit production of wheat to market and export needs. It would provide farmers with price support at an average of $2 per bushel for the bulk of their 1964 wheat marketings. It would offer payments for wheat acreage diverted to conservation use. And it would maintain farmers' income from wheat at the average of recent years. This is the program farmers would choose by voting "yes" in the forthcoming referendum. Approval by at leat two - thirds of the farmers voting is required to make the program effective.

The alternative program which farmers would choose if they voted "no" — would provide no limits on production or marketings. It would provide price support at only 50 percent of parity, about $1.20 per bushel, which would be available only to growers complying with their farm allotments. It would result in increased wheat production, and a sharp decrease in income for wheat growers. Farmers would be expected to get a market price of only about $1 per bushel, on the average, for their wheat.

Mr. Martin said that technical details of the 1964 wheat program now are being developed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture in cooperation with representatives of wheat growers and the grain trade. Major preliminary provisions of the 1964 program announced to date include: (1) a national marketing quota of about 1.2 billion bushels; and (2) a national acreage allotment of about 49.5 million acres, the same as in 1962, based on recent average yields. Farm allotments will be about 10 percent below the 1963 allotment — about the same as in 1962.

Two Got Away

Two alleged automobile thiefs are still foot-loose, but the 19-56 Ford Station Wagon they were driving was returned Sunday to Princeton, W. Va. by Grinels Motor Co. of Appomattox.

The two men ran out of gas meeting.

4-H News

The Lucky Clover 4-H Club met March 21, at Pat Covington's house. Audrey Inge had the devotions. We had a report on the "Share the Fun" program. Mac Inge gave a demonstration on how to replace a fuse. Ann Farrar had a demonstration on Peanut Butter Bird Feeders. Mr. McCormick was our guest speaker. Mr. McCormick gave a very interesting talk on his hobby, "Rasing Quail. Delicious refreshments were served after the last Wednesday afternoon just outside the home of Ernest Smith who lives on Route 460, about 6 miles west of Appomattox in the Spout Spring community. He and a neighbor talked with the men who simply reported that they were out of gas. An FBI man entered the case two days later, and he, too, through an odd coincidence, had talked with the men not knowing they were driving a stolen vehicle. The Ford wagon belongs to a Princeton drug store. Trooper R. G. Netherland investigated the case.
